Over the past several years spent working as a graphic designer/copywriter and current freelancer at Millennium Marketing Solutions, I have found challenging and rewarding work resulting in considerable professional and personal growth, all of which I credit in great part to Creative Director Michelle Fazenbaker.

Michelle embodies the perfect mix of natural talent, skills and personal traits to be an effective and supportive manager for her team while keeping her clients happy. A wiz at prioritizing tasks, she keeps her team organized and occupied but not overwhelmed. This is no small task! The result is a happy design team, able to produce their best work, and happy clients when high quality projects are delivered on time.

Michelle is passionate about design and enthusiastic about finding that just-right combination of elements to make the work really stand out. One could say she strikes a perfect balance between art and business, knowing that a design must be beautiful but also functional — it has to connect and create a reaction. She is intuitive to the needs of the client, the team she leads, and to the needs of her supervisors.

Michelle is dependable and committed to her work and the company culture. She is both a leader and a team player passionate not only about design but also her part in the success of the team and company as a whole. Michelle is not only a competent and focused creative director, she is also a caring team member and a friend, someone who will edit your blog post and then offer you a home-baked cookie. She is an amazing baker, by the way, with a great sense of humor and light-hearted attitude, which makes working with her always a pleasure.

Sincerely,
Emily Zadoretzky
